

Why Choose Family Medicine???

DIVERSITY

Medical students consistently tell me they like Family Medicine because of the variety of patients they see and the wide range of skills they are able to employ in the care of their patients.

From office visits, to minor surgical procedures, to colposcopy, to inpatient hospital care – family doctors confront a variety of challenges daily.

CONTINUITY

Whether it's talking to an elderly widow about how to take her medications, or to admitting a middle-aged diabetic man to the hospital with cellulitis, or to evaluating a young mother for depression, or to providing maternity care – family doctors are able to care for the vast majority of a family's health care needs.

Family physicians are able to provide care from birth to end-of-life.

INTIMACY

Family doctors are traditionally caring, concerned individuals who get to know their patients well.

Family physicians are best equipped to establish a relationship of mutual trust and respect with their patients.