In order to continuously assess your knowledge and stay current with family medicine, the ABFM recommends that you participate in one certification activity per year. However, because that's not always possible, there is flexibility built into the process, and the required activities may be completed at any time during each three-year stage. Each three-year stage includes the following activity requirments:
The completion of self-assessment and performance improvement activities totaling a minimum of 50 points achieved through: 1. At least one of the following ABFM-developed Knowledge Self-Assessment (KSA) activities: 3. Additional activities to reach a minimum of 50 points. These can be accomplished by adding any of the options below (KSA, CKSA, NJC, PI, etc.). - Knowledge Self-Assessment (KSA) 3. Additional activities to reach a minimum of 50 points.
