Foundation Programs

Leroy A. Rodgers, MD, Preceptorship Program

The Foundation provides stipend funding to first- and second-year medical students, representing each of Ohio's seven medical schools, who are matched with practicing family physicians for a four-week rotation during the summer months. Students interact with patients and family physicians in rural and urban practice settings. Since 1990, over 1,400 medical students' preceptorship experiences have been funded. Outcomes show 31% of all participants choose a career in family medicine, and 72% overall enter primary care specialties. Plus, 100% of participants gain a deeper understanding and appreciation for family medicine!

Your company's support of the Foundation is vital to creating a healthier Ohio for all citizens.

AAFP National Conference of Family Medicine Residents and Medical Students Scholarships

The Foundation provides scholarships for two Ohio residents and two Ohio medical students to serve as delegates and alternate delegates in the resident and student congresses at National Conference. The congresses serve as the official voices of residents and students in the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP). In addition, the Foundation will support up to 10 additional students with scholarship funding to attend the National Conference. A total of two residents and up to 12 medical students will be supported by the Foundation.

Ohio-Only Reception at AAFP National Conference

Capitalizing on the AAFP's high energy event, the Foundation typically hosts an Ohio-only reception for all students, residents, physicians, and residency faculty and representatives from Ohio registered for the National Conference. Not only does the reception provide a venue for Ohio's attendees to network and meet face-to-face, it also provides a setting for each attendee to get all of their questions answered about Ohio including involvement in the OAFP and the Foundation, and residency programs across the state.
